Winamac Scouts divided but keeping busy

For a month, the Scouts of BSA Troop 229 have been divided with two programs happening at the same time. One group of Scouts has traveled to New Mexico to the Philmont Scout Ranch. Clay Kistler, Shaun Pratt and Sam Nichols along with adult leader Stacy Nichols are a part of a group that went to the 140,000-acre ranch located near Cimarron, New Mexico. This high adventure backpacking trek will cover 80 miles over an 11-day period through the Rocky Mountain region. That trek will end soon and after the group returns, an article will be submitted on their adventure.

The remainder of the troop has been busy with attending summer camp at Camp Buffalo, working the Pork Shack at the county fair, marching in the 4-H fair parade as a part of the Honor Guard, and attending regular troop meetings as the Scouts worked on a citizenship merit badge and rank advancement. A portion of the citizenship merit badge was to visit the state or U.S. capital building so the troop planned a field trip in Indianapolis. In the morning, the Scouts enjoyed a tour of the Indiana Statehouse and then visited the Indiana State Museum in the afternoon.

Scouts and leaders alike enjoyed the scenic views at the Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico as they begin their 80-mile backpacking trek.

The Scouts enjoyed a tour of the Indiana Statehouse as they work to complete the requirements for the Citizenship in the Nation merit badge.
